

Infrastructure Innovation in Syracuse

Sam Edelstein

Innovation Team, City of Syracuse

Analytics Coordinator

November 10, 2015

Photos by Addison Spears

Innovation Team

Adria Finch
@AdriaF

Andrew Maxwell
@Andrew__Maxwell

Sam Edelstein
@samedelstein

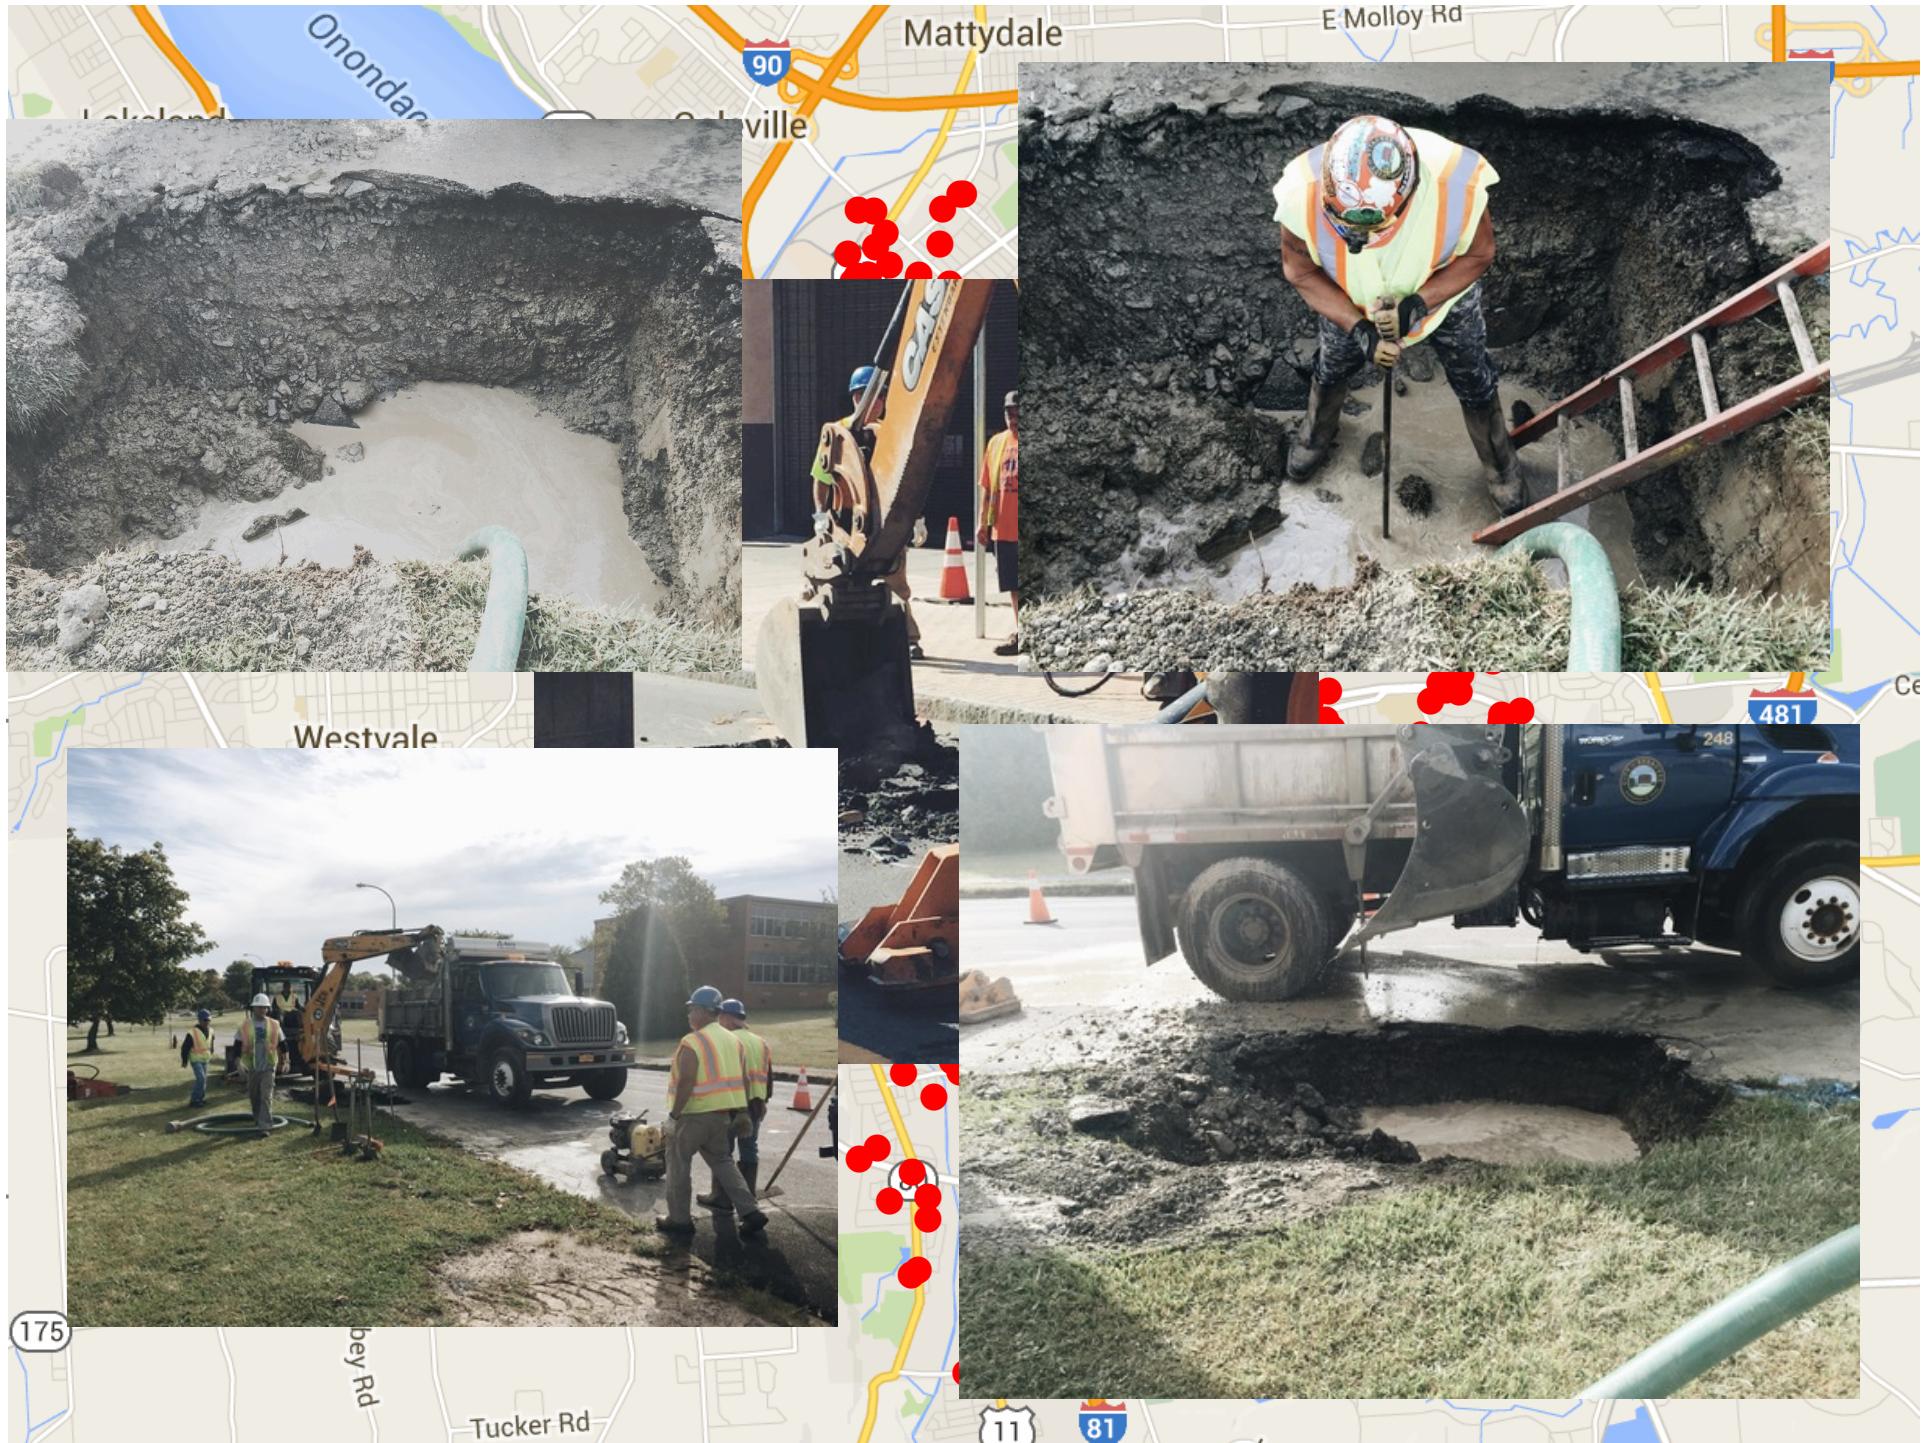

Jonnell Robinson

Addison Spears
@addspears

A photograph showing two construction workers on a sidewalk. One worker, wearing a green hoodie, is kneeling on the left, working on a patch of dirt. The other worker, wearing a dark shirt and red cap, is kneeling on the right, also working on the same area. In the foreground, several orange traffic cones are lined up across the street. The background features a brick building with yellow doors and windows.

Residents

Crew

A construction worker wearing a white t-shirt, a yellow and orange safety vest, and a white hard hat with various stickers is standing in a deep, muddy excavation site. He is holding a black power drill and appears to be working on a vertical steel support pole. The site is surrounded by a red metal ladder and wooden shoring. A green hose is visible in the foreground. The background shows the dark, textured walls of the excavation.

Commissioners

“We see firsthand on our streets both potholes and broken water mains, and the issue that infrastructure has on our ability to function as a city.” – Mayor Stephanie Miner

Mayor

Commissioners

Crew

Residents

InnovateSyracuse.com

CITY OF SYRACUSE

INNOVATION TEAM

"Changes call for innovation, and innovation leads to progress."

READ OUR BLOG

MEET THE TEAM

sedelstein@syrgov.net